

Omega Description

"Megan McAllister was a very attractive woman, somewhat taller than the average—around five feet eight or nine inches, by Echo's estimate, give or take; and with a fair, peaches-and-cream Celtic complexion. Her long, platinum blonde—almost silver—hair was currently in a French-braided updo, wrapped around her head. She appeared to be in her mid-twenties, with a figure that was at once strong and athletic, and full and feminine. Like something out of a comic book, almost, the agent thought. Easy on the eyes, I'll admit.

"And complexion wasn't the only place her Celtic genetics resided. When Megan had discovered the primary mirror of her telescope lying in more than half a dozen pieces on the desert floor, the mop-up team had learned that she also had a bit of Gaelic fire in her temperament as well—in no uncertain terms."

~Stephanie Osborn, Division One book 1, Alpha and Omega

Revision #3

Created 26 June 2020 01:33:01 by Division One Director Sigma

Updated 18 August 2021 00:44:19 by Agent Procyon