Bio:

Description:

Black flexible horns, dark gray functional wings, white skin, flame-orange eyes with vertical slits.

"In addition to being so tall, it was quite well-muscled, and apparently covered from crown to sole in white scales, which glistened almost silver in the office lighting. It was clad in a knee-length velvet-like tunic of a soft rust color. Its shoulders held what Omega at first took to be a plush gray cape...until the being flexed slightly and they unfurled a bit [revealing they were wings]...

"The creature's eyes were reddish-orange, and seemed almost to glow like living flames; the effect was enhanced by the characteristic vertical-slit pupils. Two black, sleek horns adorned the top of its head, and were, at that moment, lying neatly along the contours of the skull, though they seemed to move slightly with the being's facial expressions. The head itself was broad, rather flat, and somewhat lizard-shaped; the nose consisted of two nostril-slits, and the mouth was essentially lipless and wide."
