

Pocket Electronic Lockpick

This little silver wand loosely resembles a fountain pen such as might have been gifted as a corporate award. It allows for the swift, non-manual picking of both mechanical locks (usually via magnetism) and electronic locks (via reading the electronic state of the locking device and altering it through quantum entanglement).

Revision #1

Created 26 June 2020 02:42:00 by Division One Director Sigma

Updated 30 June 2021 22:05:42 by Division One Director Sigma